As the new school year approaches, so does a pivotal moment for our future...

Elections are on the horizon, and the decisions made in the coming months will not only shape the future of education but also the future of our children and communities.

We must rise above the challenges facing public education: the threat of closing the Department of Education; attempts to push out Black and Brown teachers and administrators; book banning; and prohibiting language related to DEI from being used in schools, to name a few.

This is a time for Truth, Racial Healing, and Transformation. A time to organize and to take action. We must ensure that education remains a valued life force for critical thinking, connection, and opportunity—not a casualty of fear. And in this moment, it's more important than ever for us to join with students, teachers, and parents as a unified force.

This summer, we proudly hosted the fifth year of Freedom Summer Youth Organizing School, where Black and Brown youth came together to learn about history, community organizing, and equity in relation to their own lives. With facilitation support from alumni of Peace & Prosperity Youth Action Movement \(PPM\), they identified the issues most pressing to their communities and envisioned solutions to the disparities that persist. They are learning to recognize and challenge the forces that seek to undermine their education and future. These bold, wise, and resourceful experts know what true education equity looks like, and their insights are invaluable as we move forward.

On October 5, 2024, we invite you to join us at the My Brother's Keeper / Girls' Equity Network Michigan Summit in Lansing. This summit is an opportunity for youth, community members, and organization leaders across the state to unite in collective action. Together, we can pave the way for equitable results for Black and Brown children across six crucial milestones, including education as it relates to young peoples' ability to thrive.
